

I do not feel that the FCC should not implement any proposal that would lessen Indiana's Telephone Privacy law protections. The use of my telephone line into my home is up to individual pays for it, and that would be me. I paid to have the line put in, I pay for the 911 service in my area, and I pay the taxes on it. I did not put it in so anyone who wants can call me at my home, interrupt my family's quality home time, and try to sell me something I don't want and don't need. Since the Indiana Telephone Privacy Law went into effect, we have gone from 10 calls per week to 1, and this is the desired affect I wanted, when I signed up for the protection. Thank you for your time.
